

Ellie Nicholson
Project Manager

Ellie is an experienced Project Manager with over 10 years of delivering complex projects across the infrastructure, defence, energy and heritage sectors. Leading multidisciplinary teams, managing diverse stakeholder groups and successfully delivering projects in technically challenging environments.

Ellie has strong experience working within multi-stakeholder environments, including local authorities, government bodies and delivery partners, ensuring projects are delivered in line with programme, budget and quality expectations.

Prior to joining DAY Project Management, Ellie led the National Trust's Castlefield Viaduct regeneration project and delivered strategically significant international projects within the subsea energy sector. In her early career at BAE Systems, Ellie developed extensive experience in project delivery, engineering and change management.

Ellie enjoys building strong client relationships, solving complex challenges and delivering high-quality projects that create lasting value.
